Here is my writing, Please acknowledge you understand the voice and explain it.

Well, internet marketing is a content business.

It is all consistency.

And at some point you find a way build an audience that you resonate with.

This is a problem with people like you that are used to success.

But eventually it evens out and the cream will rise to the top.

Thank you for providing the sample of your writing. Based on the text you shared, I understand the voice to be informal and conversational, with a direct and motivational tone. The sentences are short and to the point, emphasizing key ideas and concepts. The writing style uses simple language and a straightforward structure, focusing on conveying practical advice and encouragement.

With this understanding of your writing voice, I will aim to match the format and tone in my response. Feel free to provide a topic or specific prompt for me to write about in this style.

communication with your audience whenever you want.

So, how do you go about building that kick-ass email list? Here's a simple plan to get you started:

1. Start a podcast and interview your old friends. Share valuable insights and engage your audience with interesting conversations. People love podcasts, and it's a fantastic way to showcase your expertise.
2. Amp up the excitement with a weekly workshop. Get people hooked on your valuable knowledge by providing practical tips and strategies. Keep them coming back for more.
3. At these workshops, make an irresistible offer. Create a unique information product that's tailor-made for your audience. Give them something they can't resist, packed with valuable content they won't find anywhere else.
4. Now, here's the golden moment. When you've got their attention, ask them to join your email list. Explain the benefits they'll receive by being part of your inner circle. Make it clear that you're here to provide ongoing value and support.

Remember, my friend, rinse and repeat. Keep pushing forward, consistently. It may take time, but trust me, it's all part of the journey. You may stumble, face hurdles, or feel like nothing's happening, but hang in there. Success isn't built overnight. It's a marathon, not a sprint.

Stay focused, keep hustling, and sooner or later, you'll find that breakthrough you've been waiting for. Perhaps a partnership will come knocking on your door, or maybe you'll discover that one thing that sets you apart from the rest.

Just remember, don't lose heart. You're a born winner, and winners never quit. Keep striving for excellence, and I have no doubt that the cream will rise to the top.

Wishing you immense success on your online marketing journey!

Cheers,
